Welcome Home

An English village or a fairytale town? It is a question that casts a spell on every visitor of Villedgestepping into the Britain-themed colony of Stone Mansions. This space is a canvas where time has vividly sketched Europe's colonial era.

Canvas of classic style and elegant hues

The spacious stone-built mansions are characterized by cast-iron gates, terracotta tiles, white-painted woodwork, bay sash windows, and Mansard roof with windows.

Artist's Impression

Like masterpieces of Timelessness out of fairytale living

The floral garden in the front and the stone mansion surrounded by tall deodars and birchwood trees lend an invitation to live a life like a Victorian Duke & Duchess.

Artist's Impression

A colony that exudes a class & style of its own

Before the Victorian era, most houses flaunted one color i.e. usually white or beige. By 1887, bright earth tones like burnt sienna and mustard yellow came in vogue to flaunt a community that was vibrant and classic, at the same time.
